respect in the learning environment

As a student, you have rights and responsibilities. The right to be treated fairly, and with respect and the expectation that you will do the same for others is paramount. Following is a brief summary of what you can expect from us and what we expect from you. To summarize:

generally, students have the right to:

- think, write, speak, learn; pursue social, cultural and other interests... subject to the requirement that they respect the rights of others.
- a learning environment that is safe & conducive to learning
- be free from discrimination & harassment
- feedback on academic performance generally, students are responsible to:

- become familiar with college policies, procedures, and rules and regulations,
- refrain from behaviour or demeanor unsuitable or detrimental to the learning environment generally, students are responsible to accept the professor's right to:

- expect that students write tests when scheduled
- formulate and enforce attendance policies.
- determine subject content, methodology & grade assessment
- expect that students submit work that is their own
- set reasonable deadlines for assigned work
- expect decorum and appropriate behaviour in classrooms, labs, shops, field placements, internships, etc.

 Summarized from The Charter of Students' Rights and Responsibilities in the Daytimer Student Handbook provided to each student*

Each member of the Confederation College community is responsible for helping to create an environment that is harassment and discrimination free. Work, learning, and socializing can be accomplished in an environment of understanding and mutual respect for the dignity and rights of each individual.

Discrimination means any action or behaviour that results in unfavourable or adverse treatment based on race, colour, gender, sexual orientation, religion, intellectual capacity, body shape, family background, parental status, socio-economic background, ancestry, place of origin, ethnic origin (including language, dialect, or accent), citizenship, age, marital status, family status, record of public offences or pardoned federal offences, disability, or receipt of public assistance.

This policy includes verbal, personal, emotional, physical, and e-harassment (msn, email, Facebook etc.) and bullying in all its forms.

It is your right to learn in an environment free from discrimination and harassment.

it starts with you.
